

Taal Volcano time travel

I was playing video games when suddenly I found myself in a completely different room. I look at the clock and it is suddenly around 2:00 am in the night time. I was just getting my bearings when I heard all the stuff in my house shake. All the stuff was shaking in the room like the bed, shelf, and mostly the whole room. I dove underneath the bed when everything started shaking. I was suddenly going into the bathroom after my match ended because I had to wash my hands because I was eating. After I opened the door to the bathroom I appeared in a house that was very dark and I realized it was a bahay kubo. As soon as i was checking out the bahay kubo there was an earthquake sort of as i thought. After everything calmed down I looked outside the window. I saw red hot glowing magma in the distance and ash everywhere.. The Taal volcano was erupting.

I find myself back home but I'm scared it might happen again. So I go back and pack all the things I need in case of another time jump. I need to pack a bunch of stuff because of a situation that arises. I packed a first aid kit, food & water, a rowboat, a filtered straw for water if i run out, tent, a backpack to carry some of my stuff, sleeping bag for night time, knife to cut anything like fruits or meat, and a fishing rod if I want to catch fish to eat. Suddenly there is another jump and I am back where I time traveled too.

I grabbed all my stuff I needed, and evacuated from the area. The first time I saw the volcano erupt, I realized how many people were in the area. There were about 4,000 people, luckily most of the people that were in the area escaped from the volcano and how they escaped was some of them running and some of them were in cars and boats because it was an island with no teleportation. So what I did is packed all my needs for the evacuation cause I was stressed out and scared. The volcano hasn't exploded since 1965. That must be the year now from the volcano that erupted and I just time traveled here. After I packed all my needs I saw the clouds were gray from the ash that was coming from the volcano and a lot of ash was coming out around 0200 hours from now.

As soon as the volcano erupted I had to pack everything. All the things I have right now for supplies are my tent, first aid kit, and especially food and water. My first day of experiencing the volcano was me evacuating the area, the first thing I did was look for a place to eat and set up my tent. Afterwards I kept walking and walking until I found my second area to stay for the night and it was a Hotel in the area of Taguig until I arrived in Manila and it was a 30 minute drive to the main city of Manila .

The second day I kept on walking until I was close to Taguig. The first thing I did was eat Filipino street food like balut, calamari, banana q, kamote q, and lechon. and I found a hotel to stay the night but right after I was about to sleep I heard more crying noises and it was a family, they were really upset because of the lava burning there house down and they didn't find shelter when they arrived in Taguig. The second day of traveling to Manila City I saw more Filipino street food and I even supplied myself with food just in case I got very hungry. The food that I supplied was rice, lumpia, chicken adobo, ube, sisig, and the last one was pancit. The third day I took a taxi and went to the main part of Manila City to stay there for a couple of days until everything was okay back home close to Taal volcano so I went and got supplied with food for the next couple of days. The last day of being in Manila, I explored around the city for 3 hours until I was ready to take a taxi back home. All I did before taking a taxi was go to the big mall called “Mega Mall” . I also went to street food stands and tried out some of their street food. I also checked out some restaurants nearby. afterwards I took a taxi until I was close to Talisay Batangas where my house was located, but as soon as I got off the taxi I saw most of the plants, trees, especially animals burned down by the lava. When I evacuated from the area where the Taal volcano erupted, I saw the people that evacuated. They had shelter and families with little children were crying and upset. I felt bad for all the people that lived close to Taal volcano and even the hard work they had made because there were a lot of hand made bahay kubo . The sun rises after all situations were solved all over Taal volcano eruption. What I've experienced from this eruption was discovering along the way a lot of burned down houses, trees, and plants. After what I saw, I was devastated by the disaster.

Eight months later everything was back to normal and I will still remember all the things I've experienced with that volcano and I also remember some animals died causing the volcano and air pollution coming out of the volcano. I still saw a little bit of molten lava even though the volcano erupted 8 months ago. After i built my bahay kubo again i was suddenly teleported back to the room i was in before when i got time traveled back in taal volcano. So i decided to play some more video games and still remember how i time traveled to my room to the philippines taal volcano.
